NEW ISDA DIRECTOR

On Thursday, January 5, we received notice that Director Celia Gould would be stepping away from her post as the lead at the Idaho State Department of Agriculture. Gould, a Twin Fall native, is a third-generation owner and operator of a cattle ranch in Buhl. Before becoming the first female director of ISDA, Gould served in the Idaho House of Representatives for 16 years, from 1996 to 2002. Gould's leadership of the ISDA is highlighted through her organization of several international trade missions, steering the department and agriculture industry through the recession, and increasing Idaho's agricultural exports from $1.2 billion in 2007 to nearly $2.7 billion in 2021. As a result of this change, Chanel Tewalt was appointed by Governor Little to be the new Director this week. Tewalt has served as deputy director for the ISDA since 2021. Initially joining the agency as a college intern, Tewalt has gained over 15 years of experience working at ISDA, including as the agency's chief operations officer.

STATE OF THE STATE ADDRESS

Governor Brad Little delivered his 2023 State of the State and Budget Address on January 9, pledging to deliver on the mandate given by the people of Idaho to continue investing in public schools, strengthen our workforce, provide more tax relief, and promote safe communities. Highlights of Governor Little's State of the State and Budget Address and IDAHO FIRST plan include:

- EDUCATION – 80% of Idaho voters affirmed the record education investments passed during the 2022 extraordinary session last September. Governor Little's plan fulfills the $330 million investment in K-12 public schools by targeting starting teacher pay in the top 10 nationally, boosting pay and benefits for all teachers to keep our state competitive, closing the salary gap for classified staff, improving school facility security, and other steps.
- WORKFORCE – The availability of skilled workers is the #1 challenge facing Idaho employers. Governor Little's plan gets more skilled workers through their doors and opens more opportunities for Idahoans by providing access to an $8,500 scholarship starting next year to graduating high school students in Idaho to attend an Idaho university, community college, career technical or workforce training program of their choice. The "Idaho Launch" scholarship will be the single largest investment in career technical and workforce training in state history.
- TAX RELIEF – While no local property taxes are paid to state government and no state official can decide what local property taxes will be, Idahoans are demanding relief from rising property taxes. Governor Little's plan puts $120 million to defray local property taxes. Governor Little's plan also fulfills the income tax reductions passed during the 2022 extraordinary session, which were affirmed by four out of five Idaho voters.

- INFRASTRUCTURE INVESTMENTS – Governor Little and the Legislature have championed investments in critical infrastructure without raising taxes or fees. The Governor's budget builds off these previous commitments with more than $1 billion in new investments including fully funding the known ongoing transportation safety gap and improving local bridges, airports, and pedestrian and safety projects, and expanding broadband. His plan makes continued investments in water, energy, outdoor recreation, and agriculture.
- SAFE AND HEALTHY COMMUNITIES – Governor Little's plan continues to implement recommendations from Idaho's historic three-branch Behavioral Health Council with more than $100 million to expand resources for mental health and childcare, improve emergency medical services in rural areas, add more physicians, and make other investments to improve services for Idaho families.
- FISCAL PRUDENCE – Governor Little's budget continues fiscal prudence to better prepare Idaho for any economic conditions by paying off debt, addressing deferred maintenance, bolstering rainy-day funds, augmenting the fire suppression fund, maintaining a structurally balanced budget, and leaving a healthy surplus to provide a greater cushion against economic uncertainty.

AG COMMITTEE LEADERSHIP

This session brings new leadership for both Agricultural Affairs Committees. The Senate Agricultural Affairs Committee will be chaired by Senator Linda Wright Hartgen. Senator Hartgen is new to the Senate this year but not new to agriculture. She formerly owned a farm in the Twin Falls area with her husband. Senator Hartgen served two terms (4 years) in the House before transitioning to the Senate. The new House Agricultural Affairs committee chairman will be Representative Kevin Andrus. Rep. Andrus is from Lava Hot Springs and works as rancher and horse trainer. Rep. Andrus has served on this committee in the past as Vice Chairman and is serving his 3rd term in the Idaho House.
